Initially at 146.5 meters (480.6 ft), the great pyramid was the tallest man – made Structure in the world for over 3.800 years the longest period of time ever held for such record. Originally the great Pyramids was covered by casing stones that formed a smooth outer surface, what is seen today is the under lying core structure. Some of the casing stones that once covered the structure can still be seen as around the base. There have been varying scientific and alternative theories about the great Pyramids' construction techniques. Most accepted construction hypotheses are based on the idea that it was built by moving huge stones from a quarry and dragging and lifting them into place.*
